New York's eight most anticipated restaurant openings for fall

Labor Day may be over, but the official start of fall is still twelve days away. In New York, that autumn arrival means a new crop of hotly anticipated dining destinations set to pop up all over town. From doughnut-burger joints to global powerhouses, meet the new spots everyone will be talking about next season.

Indian Accent:

The New Delhi original helmed by Indian supertoque Manish Mehrotra is currently sitting pretty at No. 77 on S. Pellegrino's World's Best list. At this New York branch, set to open at Le Parker Meridien in November, Mehrotra will plate pork ribs with pickled mango, soft-shell crab with Madras gunpowder chutney and Kashmiri morels with Parmesan papadum wafers. 123 W 56th St
